

On The Hill Stone Soup

This is the On The Hill adaptation of the traditional story of Stone Soup, designed to take the children on an extensive investigation of where their food comes from.

Stone soup is an interactive theatrical exploration of the garden produce with a focus on healthy eating which celebrates the bounty of the garden and the joy of cooking and sharing good food.

The class will be divided into five families, each family will carry the name of a specific vegetable or grouping of vegetables, for example, the carrot family or the cabbage family.

These families will have the task of sourcing, washing and preparing their vegetables in readiness for the story and the production of stone soup.

After a snack and drink the story begins around a fire with a large cooking pot full of water. During the course of the story, the families fully participate in the production of a large tasty pot of soup that will be shared by all.

The story is hilarious and features our On The Hill staff performing the characters, accompanied by the children creating an interactive, soup making extravaganza.

Whilst the soup is cooking the children will be taken up the beautiful hill to visit the sheep, collect wild salad, play a big field game and roll back down the hill.

Stone soup will be eaten with home cooked rolls baked in our pizza/bread oven or flatbreads cooked on the fire.

Suitable for children aged 5 to 10 years old.
